

The Seating of the Governor of Coltrane

founding-pass Step 4 — the institution's own human chair, filled

Instrument of the Eir Labs Chancery · executed as a legal instrument Institution: Coltrane (`eir-labs/coltrane`) — founding in progress under the Act-II commission of Work Order 001 (Documenso #1915626) Chair: `coltrane.chair.human-governor` — function JUDGE, human by law; the office that merges on green, refuses, and seals namings; forbidden to delegate the merge to any model, or to let the office be held by one Prepared by: the standing conductor, under the commission; the founder seats and holds nothing

Effect of signature. Eugene Stuckless is seated as the Governor of the Coltrane institution. From this seating: the protected line lands only by his merge; every naming of the institution parks at his seal; and the lineage now composing (with its deepened jazz leg and the founder's testimony) awaits his approval as seated governor — the canonical order restored.

The guarantor recital

(per docs/the-guarantor.md, landed this day — its first appearance on an instrument, signed knowingly, never fine print)

By this signature I stand guarantor: my name carries through all actions taken by the agents this seal brings into existence, personally before organizationally. I understand that this system amplifies my judgment — and my mistakes — and that no organizational derivation severs this responsibility.

What this chair holds

- the merge on the institution's protected line, on green, under his own name;
- the seal of every naming — no model can mint, by shape;
- the approve of the institution's grounded lineage;
- the founding certificate, when the founding completes.

What this chair can never do

- delegate the merge decision to a model, or let the office be held by one (the chair's own law, stamped from the canon);
- be seated by anyone's hand but the sovereign-founder's own signature below.
